- Modeled after a highly success evidence-based program
- Aimed at helping children and families in need

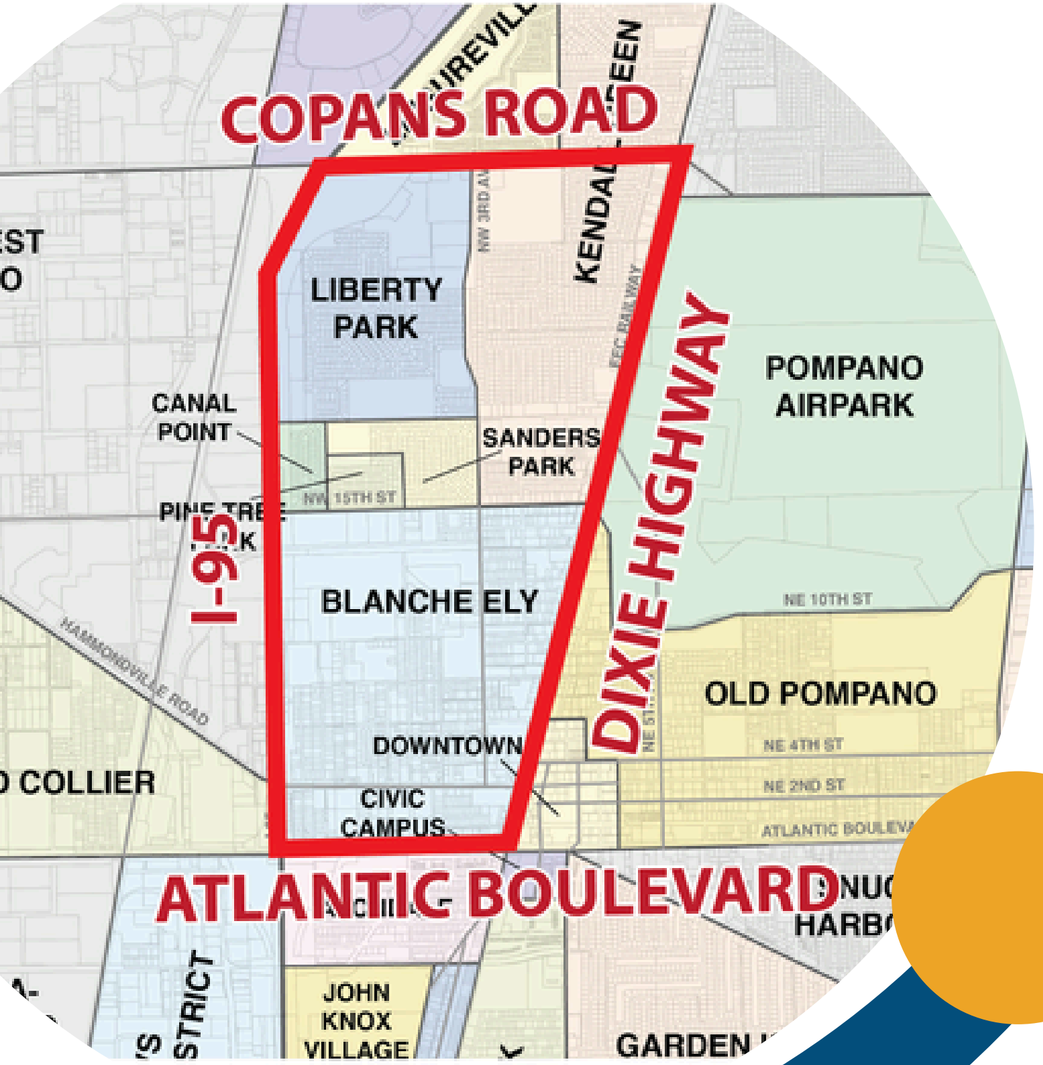

LEGISLATION

Under Florida Statue 409.147, The Ounce of Prevention Fund of Florida was provided the designation of reviewing and approving requests for Children's Initiatives was assigned to The Ounce of Prevention Fund of Florida by the 2008 Florida Legislature.

HARLEM CHILDREN'S ZONE

Founded in Harlem, New York, the Harlem Children's Zone (HCZ) is a pioneering community-based initiative aimed at breaking the cycle of poverty for families. The initiative provides a comprehensive range of services that addresses all aspects of children's lives.

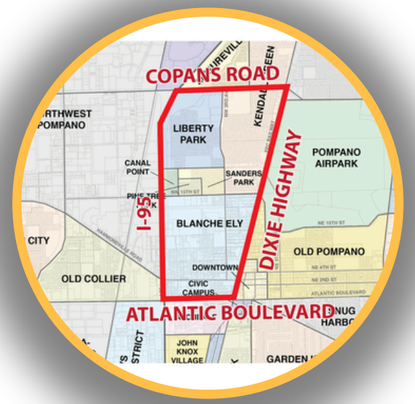

https://hcz.org

Pompano RYZE Exit 36 Initiative

The Pompano RYZE Exit 36 Initiative strategically targets the Blanche Ely Community, encompassing Blanche Ely and Sanders Park, two interconnected neighborhoods distinguished by their profound socio-economic challenges and shared community identity.

This area was selected as the focal point for the Florida Children's Initiative due to its critical needs, which starkly reflect the broader struggles facing Pompano Beach but also due to the unique readiness and established community partnerships that can catalyze swift and impactful interventions.

By designating the Blanche Ely area as the starting point for the Pompano RYZE Exit 36 Initiative, we aim to leverage existing community assets and foster a collaborative environment where every child and family can thrive.

This strategic focus is intended to serve as a model for potential expansion into neighboring areas like Collier City, ensuring that the transformative impact of the initiative grows and adapts to encompass the broader needs of Pompano Beach.

POMPANO RYZE EXIT 36

Resilient Youth with Zeal to Excel

Resilient Youth with Zeal to Excel (RYZE) is not just an initiative; it's a movement built upon recognizing that youth do not exist in isolation. To truly excel, youth must be supported by their families, embraced by their communities, and given the tools to thrive in environments that foster resilience, ambition, and the courage to pursue their dreams.

At the heart of RYZE is the understanding that resilient youth rise with the strength of a resilient community and family foundation. This dynamic, holistic approach makes RYZE more than just a youth development program—it's a comprehensive strategy for creating lasting change by building up the entire ecosystem surrounding our youth.

The Core Concept

Youth Can’t RYZE Alone

Why RYZE?

At its core, the RYZE Initiative champions the philosophy that youth need a nurturing, stable environment to truly excel. This stability comes from two sources: family and community. Both play critical roles in shaping the mindset, opportunities and long-term success of young people.

Framework

What sets RYZE apart from traditional youth programs is its commitment to innovation and its use of emerging, out-of-the-box approaches to youth development. Best practices from social work, education, psychology, and community development are integrated to create a cohesive, dynamic framework.

Youth Development Reimagined

Whole Family Engagement

RYZE recognizes that youth outcomes improve when their families are thriving. By offering wraparound services—financial literacy, job training, health services, and parent education—RYZE ensures that families are empowered to provide the stability and support youth need to excel.

This approach strengthens the entire family unit, creating a ripple effect of positive change that supports youth development.

Cradle to Career Pathways

For youth to thrive, RYZE offers a seamless support system from early childhood to college or career readiness. It starts by building a strong foundation through early childhood education, ensuring resilience from the beginning.

The program continues through middle and high school, providing mentorship, tutoring, and extracurricular activities. It culminates in pathways that lead youth to real-world success through college preparation or career opportunities.

Trauma-Informed Practices

Youth in vulnerable communities often face Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACEs), like violence, instability, or neglect. RYZE addresses these challenges by embedding trauma-informed care throughout its programs.

It ensures access to mental health services, counseling, and therapeutic support, helping youth and families heal from trauma. By doing so, RYZE builds resilience, empowering youth to overcome their past and move forward stronger.

Youth Development Reimagined

Culturally Responsive Programming

Every community is unique, and so are its youth. RYZE takes a culturally responsive approach, ensuring that the programs resonate with the lived experiences, cultural heritage, and specific challenges of the Blanche Ely and Sanders Park communities.

By incorporating local traditions, values, and cultural narratives into the programming, RYZE builds a sense of pride and ownership among youth and their families.

Community-Led Change

One of the most compelling aspects of RYZE is its belief that the community is the expert. RYZE relies on community leaders, residents, and youth themselves to co-create solutions.

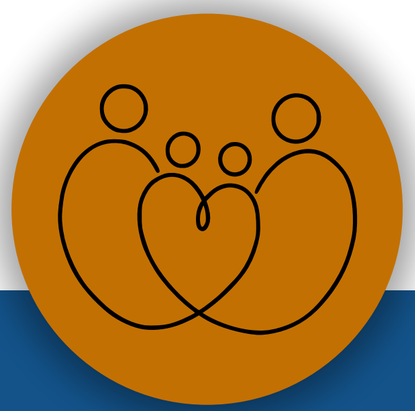

Through community listening sessions, focus groups, and youth-led projects, RYZE fosters an environment where the community has ownership over the initiative, ensuring that it reflects the authentic needs and aspirations of its members.

Out-of-the-Box Concepts

Resilience Hubs

Safe spaces where youth can engage in learning, creativity, and personal development outside of school hours. These hubs offer mentorship, technology access, and wellness resources.

Family Empowerment Networks

Bringing families together to share resources, learn from each other, and build community. This network offers workshops on financial empowerment, parenting, and health, while also creating a support system for parents to lean on one another.

Entrepreneurial Pathways

Individuals will have opportunities to participate in community-led business incubators, pitch innovative ideas, and learn the fundamentals of entrepreneurship, including financial literacy, marketing, and leadership.

The Pillars of RYZE

Resilience as a Skill:

In the RYZE model, resilience is not seen as an innate trait but as a skill that can be taught, practiced, and strengthened over time. Youth and their families are equipped with tools to cope with adversity, bounce back from setbacks, and navigate life's challenges with confidence and determination.

This includes teaching mindfulness, emotional regulation, and adaptive problem-solving strategies that foster long-term resilience. By learning to adapt and thrive in difficult circumstances, RYZE participants gain the critical thinking and emotional agility required to excel in school, career, and personal relationships.

The Pillars of RYZE

Zeal as a Driver:

Zeal—the passion and enthusiasm to pursue one's purpose—plays a central role in the RYZE framework. Too often, individuals in disadvantaged communities face environments that stifle their passion or creativity. RYZE flips this narrative by cultivating a mindset of possibility, encouraging youth to dream boldly, explore their talents, and pursue goals that ignite their enthusiasm.

Through mentorship, artistic expression, and experiential learning opportunities, people are empowered to identify their passions and channel that energy into productive pursuits. This zeal becomes a key driver of their personal and academic success, propelling them forward with a sense of purpose.

The Pillars of RYZE

RYZE adopts a cradle-to-college/career approach, ensuring that young people receive the support they need at every developmental stage. This holistic model recognizes that youth development is not linear, and that success in adulthood is often rooted in early interventions.

The program includes early childhood development initiatives, K-12 academic support, and workforce readiness programs. It provides a seamless continuum of support, reducing gaps in service that often lead to disengagement. RYZE also integrates wraparound services such as mental health counseling, family engagement, and community safety initiatives to ensure that youth are supported not just in school, but in every aspect of their lives.

The Pillars of RYZE

Trauma-Informed and Healing-Centered:

Many of the individuals RYZE serves have experienced significant trauma—whether due to poverty, violence, family disruption, or systemic injustice. Recognizing the profound impact of Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACEs), RYZE applies a trauma-informed approach, ensuring that every interaction with participants is grounded in empathy, understanding, and support.

Beyond being trauma-informed, RYZE is healing-centered, focusing on restoring a sense of safety, belonging, and empowerment for the community. This shifts the narrative from “what’s wrong with you” to “what’s strong with you,” encouraging individuals to see themselves as survivors and thrivers.

The Pillars of RYZE

Culturally Responsive and Equity-Centered:

RYZE operates from an equity-centered perspective, recognizing that the challenges faced by individuals in marginalized communities are often rooted in systemic inequities. To truly empower people, the program employs culturally responsive strategies that validate and affirm their identities, experiences, and cultural backgrounds.

This includes incorporating community-based knowledge, honoring cultural traditions, and providing opportunities for people to learn about and challenge the systems that impact their lives. By fostering a deep sense of cultural pride and social justice awareness, RYZE helps individuals succeed personally and prepares them to advocate for change in their communities.

The Pillars of RYZE

Innovation through Experiential Learning and Leadership:

RYZE incorporates best practice concepts such as experiential learning, where youth are engaged in real-world projects that allow them to apply their knowledge in meaningful ways.

Whether through service-learning projects, internships, or community leadership opportunities, young people are not passive recipients of knowledge but active participants in their development.

Experiential learning builds critical thinking, leadership, and problem-solving skills that are essential for success in the 21st-century workforce.

The Pillars of RYZE

Innovation through Experiential Learning and Leadership:

RYZE cultivates youth leadership by providing platforms for young people to take charge of their learning and decision-making processes.

Youth councils, peer mentoring, and participatory governance structures empower youth to lead initiatives, advocate for their peers, and contribute to the design of programs that serve them.

This sense of agency helps to build self-efficacy and instill the belief that they can influence the world around them.

The Pillars of RYZE

Emerging Approaches: Preparing Individuals for a Future We Can't Yet Imagine

As the world rapidly evolves, the challenges facing individuals become increasingly complex. RYZE embraces emerging approaches that prepare people not just for today's jobs, but for the uncertain future.

This includes integrating STEM and digital literacy into programming, ensuring that individuals are proficient in the technologies shaping their future careers. The program also emphasizes entrepreneurship, encouraging people to think creatively about solving problems and starting their own ventures.

In a world where traditional career paths are shifting, RYZE instills an innovation mindset, teaching to be adaptability, curiousity, and resilience in the face of change. By preparing individuals for an unpredictable future, RYZE ensures that they are not just job seekers but change-makers, ready to excel in whatever paths they choose.

Blanche Ely High School

Blanche Ely High School is the proposed hub for the Pompano RYZE (Resilient Youth with Zeal to Excel) Exit 36 Initiative due to its central role in the Blanche Ely community, both geographically and historically. As a landmark with deep cultural significance, the school serves as a gathering point for education, development, and community-building efforts. With its long-standing ties to the African American community in Pompano Beach, Blanche Ely High School is well-positioned to engage students, families, and residents in a holistic approach to development.

The school already houses essential services and has the capacity to expand programs that target cradle-to-career support, making it a natural choice for acting as the anchor for this initiative. Its role as the hub will allow for centralized access to academic support, mentorship programs, healthcare, and community services, ensuring a seamless integration of resources to address the multifaceted needs of the Blanche Ely and Sanders Park neighborhoods.

This decision was based on community feedback and the specific needs highlighted during our data review sessions.

To better capture diverse community perspectives, ISEE Group developed and subsequently revised a community survey. The revisions, informed by community feedback, focused on simplifying language and improving question formats to enhance accessibility and response rates.
